MUSEUMSQUARTIER WIEN MQ Amore

Vienna's 1. playable Sculpture park
Opening: Thu, Apr 6, 18:00 with live band thru Oct, daily 10:00 – 22:00

A beach on the Italian Riviera, a refreshing drink and an artistically designed attraction you can play on—the sculpture park MQ Amore combines cultural appreciation with free-time fun. It enables you to actively experience contemporary culture and, for the first time this year, is present not only in the MQ courtyards but also outside on the MQ forecourt. The MuseumsQuartier grounds have been expanded into the city, blending inside with outside. The opportunity to play on the pieces of art creates a dialog with the works—giving new meaning to art outreach. MQ Amore is a space of encounter, of dialog, for sporting and artistic fun in the heart of Vienna, and it feels like a mini-vacation.

MQ Amore—a sculpture park to fall in love with!

Electric Spring

Thu, Apr 20 & Fri, Apr 21, 19:30
Free admission

The "Electric Spring" electronic music festival enters its third year at the MuseumsQuartier Wien, this time under the heading "Move." In cooperation with the City of the Vienna, "Wien macht Kultur", the Kunsthalle Wien and, for the first time, Halle E, on April 20 and 21, Gerard, Mr. Dero & Klumzy Tung, Motsa, Mavi Phoenix, Lulu Schmidt, Clara Moto, and Wolfram will be among those on a program that combines new and familiar sounds from the Austrian electronic and hip-hop scene. This year's festival is curated by the DJ/VJ collective ETEPETETE, and both days kick off with concerts in the MQ Main Courtyard. Admission is free.

LEOPOLD MUSEUM CARL SPITZWEG – ERWIN WURM Hilarious! Hilarious?

thru Jun 19

The German painter Carl Spitzweg (1808–1885), whose works are an artistic reflection and documentation of the petit bourgeois idyll of the Biedermeier era, is the subject of a first comprehensive exhibition in Austria. How relevant his themes still are can be seen from the 21st century's own "Generation Biedermeier." Placed with precision and taking an analytical view of culture, the socially and politically topical interventions by the contemporary Austrian artist Erwin Wurm complement the exhibition.

#moodswings

It is moods rather than facts that are determining perceptions, decisions and courses of action to an ever greater degree. Mood data, in turn is a sought-after subject for analysis; emotions are being quantified and simulated. The exhibition, curated by Sabine Winkler, focuses on the significance and radius of sentiment in politics, economy, technology, media and art.

More Than Just Words (On the Poetic)

thru May 7

"More Than Just Words [On the Poetic]" takes up the idea of the poetic function of communication and uses it as a jumping-off point for expressive possibilities beyond the semantics of the single, unambiguous meaning. The exhibition is interested in an open language of multiple meanings and finds this in concrete poetry, films and videos, collages, installations and performances.

Marcel Odenbach. Proof of Nothing

thru Apr 30

In their intensive engagement with the past, Marcel Odenbach's works project the reverberations of Nazism into the present, while expanding this specifically German question with a universal perspective.
